CAPTRUST Announces a New Advisory Board Member

ERISA expert joins board of growing fiduciary advisory firm

RALEIGH, NC (November 16, 2007) - CAPTRUST Financial Advisors, an independent investment advisory and research firm, today announced that Quana Jew, Esq. will join the firm's advisory board.

Quana Jew is a partner in the Washington, D.C. headquarters of the law firm Arent Fox LLP. She is an expert in ERISA law with extensive experience in tax, regulatory and design issues applicable to profit-sharing plans, money purchase pension plans, Section 401(k) programs, Section 403(b) programs, and Section 457 plans. Quana also advises clients on Executive Compensation (Section 409A arrangements) as well as compliance requirements with respect to employee health and welfare benefits programs. Quana is frequently asked to advise clients on their fiduciary responsibilities. Quana was recently named as one of Washington DC's best tax attorneys.

“With so many regulatory changes, this is an exciting time to be in the retirement plan industry” said Quana Jew. “CAPTRUST is well positioned to be able to cut through the ever evolving layers of legislation and to provide plan sponsors with clear guidance and advice in their role as fiduciaries.”

Quana Jew joins Jeff Montgomery, CEO of NFP Securities, Inc. of Austin, Texas; Charles Ruffel, founder and CEO of Asset International (parent company of Plan Sponsor Magazine) of Stamford, Connecticut; Rob Solomon, founder and CEO of Texas-based Bulldog Solutions, Inc; and Jerry Tylman founder and CEO of Charlotte, NC-based Greenway Solutions, Inc. as a member of the CAPTRUST's Advisory Board.
